WASHINGTON, July 20, 1868. The President this afternoon sent the following Message to the Senate : To the Senate of the United States:

I have given the joint resolution entitled "A Resolution to Exclude From the Electoral Count the Votes of the States lately in Rebellion, which shall not I ave been Recognized by Congress," as careful an examination as I have been able to bestow on the same during the few days that have interveapproval. Feeling constrained to withhold my consent, I herewith return the Resolu tion of the Senate, in which it originated, have induced my action.

THROBY ON WHICH THE RESOLUTION IS BASED. The joint resolution is based upon the assumption that some States, whose inhabit ants were lately in rebellion, are not now entitled to representation in Congress, or to participate in the election of President and Vice President of the United States. I have heretofore had occasion to give in detail my reasons for dissenting from this view. It is not necessary at this time, to repeat them. It is sufficient to state that I continue strong in my conviction that the acts of secession, by which a number of the States sought to dissolve their connection with the other States, and to subvert the Union, being unauviolation thereof, were, from the beginning, absolutely null and void. It follows necessarily that when the rebellion terminated, the separate States which had attempted to secede continued to be States in the Union, their practical restoration as States. Such measures were adopted, and the legal result the requirements of the Constitution, resumed their former relations, and became entitled to the exercise of all the rights guaranteed to them by its provisions.

RECOGNIZES THE LEGALITY OF SECESSION. The joint resolution under consideration however, seems to assume that by the insurrectionary acts of their respective inhabitants those States forfeited their rights as such, and can never exercise them, excepupon readmission into the Union on th terms prescribed by Congress.

POSITION. If this position be correct, it follows that they were taken out of the Union by virtue constitutional. We would thus be placed in this inconsistent attitude-that while the the distinct ground that the Southern States, | Congress may deem necessary. being component parts of this Union, were in rebellion against the lawful authority of the United States, upon its termination we resort to a policy of reconstruction which assumes that it was NOT in fact a rebellion, but that the war was waged for the conquest of the territories assumed to be outside of the constitutional Union.

The mode and manner of receiving and counting the electoral votes for President and Vice President of the United States are Constitution. That instrument imperatively requires that the President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates, and the votes shall then be counted CONGRESS NO POWER TO RECEIVE OR REJECT

Congress has therefore no power to receive electoral votes or reject them, under the Contitution. The whole power is exhausted when in the presence of the two Houses the votes are counted and the result declar ed. In this respect the power and duty of the President of the Senate, under the Constitution are purely ministerial. When therefore, the joint resolution declared 'that no electoral votes should be received o nted from the States that, since the 4th of March, 1867, have not adopted a Constiition of State Governments, under which ate Government shall have been organized, ower is assumed which is nowhere delega that the State Governments organized price to the 4th of March, 1807, were illegal and void. The joint resolution, by Implication at least, concedes that these States were States by virtue of their organization prior to the 4th of March, 1867, but denies to them the right to vote in the election of President and Vice President of the United

It follows either that this assumption of ion, or that the States excluded from voting restored, I am forced to the conclusion

If any one is displeased that s to the so-called reconstruction acts of Government and the Constitution, they may ss, cannot be legally received and make their decrees now, for I tell you, that ted, while the only votes in those States after November you will not be able to hear can be legally cast and counted, will be one of them speak. It would, however, be exceedingly difflcult to find in the Constitution any more authority for the joint resolution under conaderation, than for an enactment eyoking lirectly the rejection of all votes not in accordance with the deep political preference | rain of Heaven falls, alike on the just of a majority of Congress. No power exists in the Constitution authorizing the joint resolution or the proposed law. The only tious; the unjust, the rascal, the difference being that one would be more palconsequences and inconsistencies of the publy unconstitutional and revolutionary than the other one. Both would rest upon the Radical error that Congress has the power to prescribe terms and conditions as of their acts of secession; and hence that to the right of the people of the States to the war waged on them was illegal and un- cast their votes for President and Vice President. For the reasons thus indicated, I am constrained to return the joint resolution to war was commenced and carried on upon the Senate for such further action thereon as

> Washington, D. C., July 20, 1868. General Blair's Speech at Omaha Nebraska.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

P. Blair was received, on his way further Islands. West, by the citizens of Omaha, in immense numbers. After a felicitous welcome by the Mayor, General Blair spoke as follows: "I am here to acknowledge the compliment you have paid me. I assure you that I value the compliment. I am well aware in plain and simple terms, prescribed by the that it is not paid me as an individual, but rather as one of the representatives of that cause to which you have shown yourselves so devoted. (Applause.) It is a cause, my fellow citizens, worthy of your greatest devotion, and of your highest enthusiasm. It is the cause of free Government and Constitutional Government in this country, and I am satisfied, my friends and fellow citizens, from the enthusiasm and feeling manifested here to-night, and elsewhere where I have been, that this cause is destined to a great and glorious victory at the next election in November. (Great applause.) I feel, my fellow citizens, that we are destined to achieve a great victory in behalf of our free Sovernment and free Constitution, I feel to-day, not alone from this manifestation, but from all we have seen during the past year in the elections where the policy of the Radical party has been condemned by overwhelming majorities of the people of the United-States-(cheers)-and notwithstanding these condemnations by the people-these reckless people who achieved power npon a totally different issue from that which is now before the people, in defiance of the votes of the people of whom they were simply the representatives; have urged forward these measures to a completion in hope that they could bind the hands of the people of this country and wrest from them the power forever.
